For the whole month of March, Flying Cranes Antiques, leading specialists in Japanese Meiji period artwork, will mount an exhibition in their galleries at 1050 Second Avenue of over fifty diverse examples of metalwork, ceramics, carvings, lacquer and bamboo, many from noted collections from around the world. Centre stage among the items in the exhibition will be rare examples by highly-skilled masters of the koro, censer, and the covered box—configurations especially honoured by the Japanese artisan, the Imperial Household and by serious collectors both in the East and in the West.

The Japanese Art Dealers Association (JADA) will present fine and important works of art, from the archaic to luminous gold-leaf screens, to exceptionally refined ceramics and vibrant, colourful woodblock prints that influenced the West’s Impressionist and Post-Impressionist artists. JADA 2016 will be held for three days only, from March 12th to 14th, in the expansive Ukrainian Institute of America on 79th Street and Fifth Avenue. The exhibition and sale is being organised by Erik Thomsen Gallery, Koichi Yanagi Oriental Fine Arts, Leighton R. Longhi, Inc. Oriental Fine Art, Mika Gallery and Sebastian Izzard LLC Asian Art.

Japan Society Gallery in New York will exhibit "In the Wake: Japanese Photographers Respond to 3/11" beginning Friday, March 11th, 2016, five years to the day since an enormous earthquake and tsunami struck north-east Japan, devastating coastal regions and setting off a nuclear power plant disaster. On view through June 12th, 2016, the exhibition is the centrepiece of an institution-wide observance of what was the first natural disaster in Japan caught in its entirety on camera. Public programmes, films, performances and special events will be presented in conjunction with the exhibition at Japan Society (333 East 47th Street) to commemorate the anniversary and examine issues surrounding post-3/11 recovery and reconstruction. Organised by the Museum of Fine Arts, Boston, where it was on view last year, "In the Wake" features more than ninety photographs, videos and installations created by seventeen artists, who contemplate what has been lost and what remains in the aftermath of a national tragedy that took some 18,000 lives and displaced another 400,000 individuals.

Joan B. Mirviss, Ltd, located at 39 East 78th Street, is thrilled to announce the opening of "A Palette for Genius: Japanese Water Jars for the Tea Ceremony", coinciding with the start of Asia Week New York 2016, and organised in conjunction with the leading modern ceramic dealer in Japan, Shibuya Kurodatoen Co., Ltd. This exhibition
“Just heads”: an exhibition of stone, bronze and terracotta from India and Asia at Tambaran Gallery

Buddha Shakyamuni, bronze with silver and copper inlay, Tibet, 14th century. Eleanor Abraham Asian Art exhibiting at The Asia Art Fair

Just Child (detail) by Kikuji Kawada (born 1935). Japanese photography exhibition at Japan Society Gallery

Celadon mizusashi (water jar) by Kawase Shinobu (born 1950), height 20.3 cm. Joan B. Mirviss, Ltd

Two-fold paper screen by Sakai Hoitsu, painted with a crow perched in a persimmon tree, 19th century. Gregg Baker Asian Art juxtaposes ancient traditions with current interpretations of the mizusashi, a lidded water jar used to replenish the brazier, as a testament to the evolution of this timeless tea ceremony utensil. For hundreds of years, the tea ceremony has inspired Japanese ceramists to create highly unique utensils, like the water jar, which embody the mantra of tea, ichi-go ichi-e, “for this time only”. This exhibition presents ceramics by traditional masters, as well as artists with a contemporary flair, such as Kawase Shinobu (born 1950).

Blue and white eight tiered pagoda, late 18th-early 19th century, height 90 cm. Jorge Welsh Works of Art

Maureen Zaremb, owner and founder of Tambaran Gallery, is excited to participate once again in Asia Week. With her eclectic range of art, the exhibition and installation of both traditional and contemporary art will be dedicated to the entire month of March. The Tambaran exhibits include “just heads”: stone, bronze and terracotta from India and Asia; and a small collection of antique wooden bowls and pots from Hawaii, Japan and China. New works by the Korean artist Sung Hee Cho portray her reflections on nature and the ever-changing seasons (hanji paper and oil on canvas). Tambaran also has two exciting guest exhibitors at 5 East 82nd Street, New York: Galerie Alexis Renard from Paris, and Gallery Japonesque from San Francisco.

Now in its third year, The Asia Art Fair will display a rich and diverse range of treasures from China, Japan, Southeast Asia, Oceania, India and the Near East. The fair will open on March 11th and run through March 15th, 2016 at the Bohemian National Hall (321 East 73rd Street). Exhibitors include Eleanor Abraham Asian Art, Dennis George Crow, Anavian Gallery, Dharma Art, Moke Mokotoff, Robyn Buntin of Honolulu and The Jade Dragon, among others. Paintings, sculptures, porcelain, metalwork, textiles and jewellery will all be presented, so that the fair will allow visitors access to a broad range of art and artefacts from across Asia at a single destination.

TEFAF (The European Fine Art Fair) defines “Excellence”, “Expertise” and “Elegance” in art. It is widely regarded as the world’s leading art fair, showcasing more than 50,000 works of art and antiques of the finest quality. Participants are only admitted after a strict selection process and TEFAF Maastricht’s vetting system involves no fewer than 175 international experts who examine every work of art in the fair for quality, authenticity and condition. Seasoned collectors, scholars and purchasers from well-known galleries and museums from Asia, Europe, the Middle East and the US regard the fair as a must-attend annual event.

Last year, representatives of 262 museums from around the world visited TEFAF, including Musée du Louvre, The Metropolitan Museum of Art and the British Museum. The line-up for the 2016 edition of TEFAF looks impressive, with some 270 leading art and antiques dealers from twenty countries participating. They will exhibit in twenty-four art categories, such as Old Master, modern and contemporary painting, sculpture, design, photography and jewellery. The group of specialists offering top-quality Japanese, Chinese, Indian, Himalayan and Southeast Asian art includes Gregg Baker Asian Art, Gregg Welsh Works of Art, Amir Mohtashemi, Robert Hall, Pearl Lam Galleries, Marcel Nies Oriental Art, Sydney L. Moss, Vanderven Oriental Art, Martyn Gregory, Michael Goedhuis Ltd, Rossi & Rossi and Ben Janssens Oriental Art Ltd. TEFAF 2016 will take place from Friday March 11th to Sunday March 20th at the MECC, Forum 100, Maastricht, The Netherlands.

The fair also announced that, through a joint venture with New York based Artesian, it will be launching two TEFAF art fairs that will be presented annually in New York at the Park Avenue Armory. The first fair, TEFAF | New York | Fall, will premiere in October 2016 and focus on art from antiquity to the 20th century. The second fair, TEFAF | New York | Spring, will premiere in May 2017 with an emphasis on modern and contemporary art and design.

At the end of 2015, I had the pleasure of attending two very exciting gallery exhibitions in Hong Kong and meeting their famous artists. “What’s in a Dot? Nanqi’s Post-Pop Experiment” is the title of the exhibition and book produced by Evelyn Lu and Jane Tam of ink paintings by Nan Qi, born 1960 in Yongkang City, China. The artist graduated in 1986 from the People’s Liberation Army Fine Arts Academy and is a member of the Chinese Artists Association and a founding member of the council of the Chinese Painting Society. Currently residing at Nanqi Studio, Songzhuang, Beijing, Nan has received numerous art awards and held solo exhibitions at the National Art Museum of China, Beijing, and the Shanghai Art Museum, Shanghai. Nan’s distinctive work is sought by Chinese collectors for his development of ink painting techniques.

The second gallery exhibition featured one of the hottest artists in town and around the world—Liu Dan. Following the success of his first commercial show in Europe, at Eskenazi in London, he was back in Hong Kong for the opening of “The Shape of Time”, an exhibition at Gagosian Gallery in collaboration with the well-known Brussels-based antiques dealer, Gisèle Croës. The exhibition gathered exceptional Asian antiques spanning several millennia, and set them in dialogue with modern and contemporary works by Georg Baselitz, Cai Guo-Qiang, Chu Teh Chun, Alberto Giacometti, Andreas Gursky, Takashi Murakami, Nam June Paik, Sterling Ruby, Richard Serra and Zao Wou-Ki. “The Shape of Time” also included Liu Dan’s 2015 ink on paper of a spectacular scholar’s rock with immaculate calligraphy below—the massive painting, 244 x 380 cm, sold immediately.

Finally, I conclude this Editorial with my photograph taken on December 15th at the opening of “The Radiant Ming 1368-1644 through the Min Chiu Society Collection at the Hong Kong Museum of History”, held to celebrate the Min Chiu Society’s 55th Anniversary. The officiating guests at the opening ceremony were (from the left): Director of Leisure and Cultural Services Michelle Li, Jockey Club Steward Michael Lee, Chairman of the Min Chiu Society Frank Chan, Chief Secretary for Administration Carrie Lam, former Chairman of the Min Chiu Society Frank Wu, History Museum Advisory Panel Chairman Stanley Wong, and Hong Kong Museum of History Director Belinda Wong.

The exhibition was made possible through the generous support of individual members of the Min Chiu Society. Around 300 sets of items from their precious collections will be on display until April 11th, 2016. These include imperial porcelains, lacquers, cloisonné enamels, jades, textiles, furniture, gold and silver wares, paintings, calligraphies, scholar’s objects, recreational objects and religious figures. It is hoped that these exhibits will guide the audience through the history and culture of the Ming dynasty, providing fresh and diverse perspectives. The exhibition is accompanied by a very splendid hard cover book, which is being reviewed for Arts of Asia by our Contributing Editor Rose Kerr and is scheduled to appear in our next edition.
ASIA WEEK NEW YORK
HIGHLIGHTS

The 2016 edition of Asia Week New York continues to offer a non-stop schedule of gallery open houses, auctions at Bonhams, Christie’s, Doyle, iGavel and Sotheby’s, exhibitions, lectures, symposia and special events. The ten-day celebration of Asian art and culture runs from March 10th through 19th.

Lark Mason, Chairman of the Asia Week New York Association, said: “For connoisseurs and collectors who want to immerse themselves fully in the wonders of the Far East, they know there is a once-a-year celebration that they must attend. And it’s no wonder. Asia Week combines top-flight galleries and world renowned Asian art specialists for over a week of outstanding events and exhibitions—all sprinkled around the world’s most exhilarating city, New York!”

Nine new galleries have joined the roster: Berwald Oriental Art, DAG Modern, FitzGerald Fine Arts, Gallery Japonesque, Alan Kennedy, Laurence Miller Gallery, Renaud Montméat Art d’Asie, Phoenix Ancient Art and Tenzing Asian Art. In total, forty-six international galleries participating at Asia Week New York 2016 will showcase museum-quality works of art from across the Asian continent. To whet readers’ appetite, illustrated here are some of the highlights, and full details of all the events are available at www.asiaweekny.com.

Large Archaic Jade Blade. Shang dynasty, circa 13th century BC, length 31.5 cm. J.J. Lally & Co.

Tiered Japanese Lacquer Box. Late Edo period, painted with Sansa fabric design, height 50 cm. Kaikodo

Bronze Bow-shaped Fitting. Shang dynasty, 15th-11th century BC, length 36 cm. Gisèle Croës

Male Head. Bactria, 2nd century BC, marble, height 59 cm. Dalton Somaré

Lifetime Portrait of the Fifth Dalai Lama. Central Tibet, 1638–1662, mineral pigments on silk, 160 x 122 cm. Navin Kumar Gallery

Lingakosa. Vietnam, 8th–10th century, silver, gold, length 20 cm. Carlo Cristi